LITTLE DOC

Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Dr. John Sand, a recent arrival in Hope, Ark., has been three times bitten by a dog named Little Doc. The dog is a small, black and white, short-haired dog, who works for Doc as his nurse. Old Doc is a shepherd who has been treating the dog for a long time. The dog has been treating the doctor for a long time. The dog has been treating the doctor for a long time.

It's still in him. Don't be too curious with them questions. "I'm not curious about you or the wounded man. I just need the proper tools for the job." Little Doc lit the lamp and carried it with him into the operating room and set it down. The man warned: "I got my eye on you. Don't try to slip a gun into that bag along with your tools."

IT must have been somewhere around midnight when Little Doc blinked his eyes open and kept blinking them against the glare of a lighted match held in the cupped hand of a tall man standing over his cot with a six-shooter in his other hand. The fellow had a black silk handkerchief pulled up across the lower part of his face and above the mask were a pair of silver eyes, the color of gun metal.

"Put on your duds and fetch your doctor's bag. We're going for a horseback ride." The match burned itself out, leaving them in darkness. "You don't need that gun," said Little Doc. "Put it away and light the lamp." He didn't like the ugly sound of the man's voice. "Don't waste time stallin' around. We ain't got all night." "I'm trying to hurry it. Quit trying to scare me." Little Doc dressed quickly. "My bag's in the operating room. I'll have to light the lamp to pick out what I need to put in it. Is it a knife or gunshot wound?" he asked. "The feller's been shot. Fetch plenty of chloroform to put him to sleep." "Clean wound? Or is the bullet still in him?" Doc pulled on his

"I don't own a gun. But I'd like to leave a note for my nurse—instructions for her to follow while I'm gone. When do I get back?" "Tomorrow. Next day. Mebby next month. Mebby you ain't comin' back. You ain't puttin' nothin' in writin'. If you do, you're askin' for a gun-whuppin'. Doc. Stuff what you need in your bag and let's get goin'!"

THE tall man had a saddled horse waiting outside. The stirrups were too long but the man said he would shorten them, once they got clear of town. He took a black silk handkerchief and blindfolded Little Doc, then led his horse. Little Doc had to hang onto the saddle horn with both hands. He heard Sheep growl softly as they rode past the shed where Old Dad, the shepherd, had his bed. "You keep a dog, Doc?" "I feed every dog that comes to the back door." "I don't like dogs. They bark." "Most burglars don't like dogs." "I ain't no burglar." "My mistake. I thought you were when I woke up." "I don't want your money. Nothin' you got, except your know-how. Only you, because you're a doctor." The man chuckled harshly. "We got a job fer you."

"Thanks. Who recommended me? That's a question all doctors ask. Routine question." "Yeah. I know. Like the lawyer asks questions when a man's put on the witness stand. And you sit the same answer. I don't remember. I don't tell nothin'." "I won't be much use as a doctor when I get there, if you don't do something about these stirrups."

THE tall man dismounted and started shortening the stirrups. He kept clearing his throat and spitting. "That cabin of yours sure stinks, Doc. What is that stuff I smelled, chloroform?" "Formaldehyde—a disinfectant. Have you ever had scarlet fever?" "No. You can die of that, can't you, Doc?" The man's voice sounded frightened. "You ain't got it, have you?" "Not yet. But I've got a patient down with it. A little boy. And if I don't get back tomorrow—or today, since it's early morning—the boy may die. That would make you guilty of his murder."

"Tryin' to throw a scare into me?" "Not at all. I'm just telling you the facts." "I'll just shove your feet in through the stirrup leathers." The man stopped working on the stirrups. "I ain't got time to fool with the leathers. You'll ride thataway and like it." He paused as his mind went back to what the doctor had just said. "Scarlet fever don't stink as bad as your office, unless a man's dead from it. You're lyin'." "If you're in a hurry," said Doc quietly, "you're using valuable time." The man grunted and got on his horse.

Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts. Both Barkley and Rayburn said the 70-minute conference went into the possibility of a congressional vacation later on, but that nothing was decided. "We told the President," Rayburn said, "that when he got his recommendations up there for any additional things he wants, and they are disposed of, the leaders of the senate and house will get together and decide about a recess."

One well-placed official said the President may seek authority to put quantity limits on the production of big steel users such as the auto industry, which is pounding toward a record 8,000,000-car year. This official emphasized, however, that there is no indication that consumer rationing, or price and wage controls will be needed, or requested of congress.

Neither, it was stated, will the controls extend to such vast segments of the economy as food, tex-confidential sources, said Stalin wrote that he "welcomed Nehru's initiative in trying to restore peace in Korea;" and "reactivation to the security council should be the first step."

The Times noted that this latter reference obviously meant that the Chinese Communists should be seated on the U. N. council in place of the nationalists. Russia has been boycotting the council and other U. N. agencies because of the presence of Nationalist China representatives.

enemy had succeeded in getting only two tanks across to the south bank of the Kum river and that both these had been destroyed. Field dispatches intimated the Reds since had brought up more armor. This evidently came from the heavy Red concentrations which MacArthur reported were building up just north of the Kum.

Associated Press Correspondent William R. Moore, who visited Taejon at 9 a. m. Monday (5 a. m. CST), said most of its 100,000 population had fled. He talked with American soldiers on the empty streets, and with South Korean military police.

While the Americans were rolled back in one sector at least six miles from the Kum, General MacArthur said the northern Communists suffered their worst setbacks of the Korean war on the East coast.

Two Russian built Yak fighter planes were shot down by American pilots. One was downed by Lt. George M. Edwards of El Paso, Tex., north of Taejon. A Jet P-60 shot down the second plane when Edwards called for help. It was the first time the Red planes had shown any fight since 17 were shot down early in the war.

In the west the Americans, outnumbered 10 to one by the North Koreans, were pushed back six miles. The entire 24th American infantry division fell back slowly from the Kum river southwest of Kongju and northwest of Taejon.

Tank led North Korean infantrymen pushed across the Kum Saturday, MacArthur said.

But the United Nations commander declared, the 24th held them up 48 hours, giving southern elements time in which to gather men and supplies for "assaulting the offensive" against the north.

He said the American 34th and 19th infantry regiments—elements of the 24th division—had taken up defensive positions along the north and west approaches to Taejon. Taejon is the abandoned southern emergency capital.

Once they crossed the Kum, MacArthur said, the Reds resumed their flanking and infiltration tactics. This forced the Americans back. But they inflicted losses on the enemy by the use of the grand plan of the North Koreans, he said. American losses were "not excessive."

He said Maj. Gen. William F. Dean was commanding the 24th division. This was the first announcement that Dean had resumed command of the division. He briefly was commander in Korea until Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker took over last week.

The Communists apparently had a twin-pronged drive going south of the river. Both field dispatches and Eighth army headquarters in Korea said Taejon still was in American hands.

American and Australian fighters and U. S. light bombers ranged along the flaming front 90 miles above the front. Other B-29's plastered the Chungju area closer to the front.

to provide her North Korean satellite with a tactical air force. There is still another danger, if World War II is taken as a lesson—the possibility that the Communists might decide to try "buzz bombs" as the Germans did with damaging results against the harbor of Antwerp. The Russians are known to have captured quantities of these medium-distance missiles and to have been experimenting with their improvement since the war.

The range of the World War II V-1 was between 250 and 300 miles. The distance from North Korean-held territory to the constricted, congested port of Pusan is only about 130 miles.

There are no good alternate ports in South Korean hands. While information here shows three other ports—Masan, Yosu and Mipo (also called Moppo)—they are small, with shallow harbors and few facilities for handling even light vessels. Heavy ocean-going ships cannot use them.

Pusan itself, when the Americans started using it for the South Korean campaign, had only four piers able to berth ocean-going ships, with water depths alongside the piers of between 21 and 33 feet.

New Fishing Site to Be Result of Dam

Little Rock, July 17 —(AP)— Construction of an earthen dam, which will form a huge public fishing lake near Little Rock, will begin within the next two weeks. This was announced today by the Arkansas game and fish commission which received bids on construction of the 1,100 foot length dam at Palarm creek in Pulaski and Faulkner counties.

Apparent low bidder on the project was the R. W. Hammock Co. of Van Buren. The bid was $82,274.

Executive Secretary T. Arthur McAmis of the commission said plans call for completion of the dam within three months.

McAmis said the Palarm area will be the largest hunting and fishing sanctuary in the state to be operated by the state and open to the public.

American and South Korean ground forces. They were credited with destroying or damaging 28 Red tanks, 32 trucks and 14 railway box cars.

B-29 Superfortress bombers struck deep into North Korean territory. Fifty of them dumped 400 tons on the railroad yards at Seoul, 90 miles above the front. Other B-29's plastered the Chungju area closer to the front.

A&P Announces Increase in Coffee Price

New York, July 17 —(AP)— Coffee prices were increased four to five cents a pound today by the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea co. on its bag-packed brands.

The new prices are 74 cents a pound for Eight O'Clock Brand, 76 for Red Circle and 77 for Bokar.

Trade circles expected other chain stores to announce similar advances.

The A. and P. attributed its hikes not to the Korean war but rather to the continued advance in green coffee prices largely because of adverse crop conditions.

Texas Becomes Fifth State in Population

Houston, July 17 —(AP)— Texas has at least 7,575,443 people and has passed Ohio to become the fifth most populous state.

The 1950 census count, still not complete, reached that figure yesterday when Houston was reported to have 593,600 population. This makes Houston the largest city in the South, passing New Orleans which has 568,878. Houston has an annexed large area since the 1940 count.

The preliminary Ohio population has been announced as 7,501,791. Texas was sixth in 1940, with 6,414,824, behind Ohio's 6,907,012. Ranking at the top in order this year are New York, Pennsylvania, California and Illinois.

Carolyn Sue Holdridge and John Wayne Warrick Wed at High Noon

Miss Carolyn Sue Holdridge daughter of Reverend and Mrs. H. Paul Holdridge of this city, became the bride of John Wayne Warrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Warrick of Plainview, Ark. in a ceremony at high noon Sunday, July 16 in the Gospel Tabernacle.

The Reverend H. Paul Holdridge, father of the bride, officiated at the beautiful and impressive double ring ceremony before an arch of greenery, flanked by floor baskets of white gladioli, stock, and Maroon daisies. The choir rail was banked with huckleberry.

Mrs. Joseph Geno, organist, played a program of nuptial music including "Indian Love Call," "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," "Intermezzo" and "Always preceding the ceremony. Mrs. Geno accompanied Mrs. Wilfred White who sang "Because," and "God Gave Me You". As the couple knelt on the white kneeling bench for the nuptial blessing, Mrs. White sang "Submission".

Preceding the bride to the altar was her maid of honor and only attendant, Miss Ethel White. Miss White was gowned in pink nylon organza, fashioned with tight fitting bodice and dropped shoulder sleeves. Her bouffant skirt was ankle length and she wore a headress of pink sweetheart roses. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white mixed summer flowers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Coy Holdridge of Dallas, was a picture of loveliness in her wedding gown of white imported Chantilly lace fashioned with short puffed sleeves, basque waist, and a full ankle length skirt. Her fingertip veil of nylon illusion was attached to a heart shaped coronet of white illusion trimmed with white flowers. She carried a white Bible topped with stephanotis and a purple throat orchid. Her mitts were of matching lace and she wore white linen pumps.

Gene Holdridge, brother of the bride was best man and ushers were Richard Bruner, and S. A. Westbrook, Jr.

For her daughters wedding, Mrs. Holdridge chose a dress of pink imported swiss, and pink and black accessories. She wore a corsage of white roses.

Mrs. Warrick, mother of the bridegroom, wore a dress of black sheer with white and black accessories and a corsage of white roses.

Mrs. T. W. Friday, grandmother of the bridegroom, wore a blue and white sheer with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The bridal couple received guests in the vestibule of the church, after which a luncheon was held in the private dining room of the Barlow hotel, given by the bride's parents for the bridal couple, members of the wedding party and immediate families.

The U-shaped table was covered with white damask, and the bride's table was centered with the three tiered wedding cake topped with miniature bride and groom. On each side were low bowl arrangements of white flowers and white tapers in crystal holders. Bridal place cards marked places for the guests.

For their wedding trip through the Ozarks, the bride chose a baby blue faille suit with black patent

An officer of ancient Rome, called away to the wars, locked his beautiful wife in armor, gave the key to his best friend, with the admonition, "If I don't return in six months, use this key. To you, my dear friend, I entrust it." He then galloped off to the wars.

About ten miles from home, he saw a cloud of dust approaching, and waited. His trusted friend, on horseback, galloped up and said, "You gave me the wrong key."

DOROTHY DIX Tips for Husbands

Dear Miss Dix: I am planning on being married soon and it is my ambition to make my fiancée the happiest wife in the world. Can you suggest the ten best rules to follow in order that I may do so?

Answer: Well, Bill, any man can make his wife happy if he wants to and if he deliberately sets out to do so. Marriage can get mighty dull and monotonous in the course of twenty-five or thirty years if the husband doesn't do anything to pep it up for his wife. And if a husband wants to keep his wife thinking herself the luckiest woman in the world he should do something about it. And here are the ten rules that I should suggest for him to follow:

First. Keep up the line by which he won her. Don't drop all courtship at the altar. Before marriage a woman had many men to tell her how beautiful and wonderful she was. After marriage she has only one, so it is up to him to keep busy handing her out the sweet talk.

Second. Make it part of your daily dozen to pay your wife a compliment. That keeps up her morale. A wife's public is her husband and if he never gives her the glad-hand she is apt to slump. She thinks what's the use in doling up myself for a man who never notices what I have on, or wearing myself out cooking a good dinner for a husband who gobbles it down with out apparently knowing the difference between hash and a ragout?

Third. Keep yourself shaven and easy on your wife's eyes. Women care even more for appearances than men do and no wife looks at a slouchy, slovenly husband with a three days' stubble of beard on his face without wondering why she did it.

Fourth. Be as entertaining at home as you are abroad. Don't be the life of the table at a party and a stuffed shirt at your own fireside. No woman's idea of a happy evening is spending it with a man who only grunts when he is spoken to and never makes a voluntary remark, except to knock something she has done or left undone. Women marry for companionship. See that your wife gets some.

Fifth. Be a little ray of sunshine. No woman can make a happy home by herself. That is a two-handed job that takes both a husband and wife working together to pull off. Don't save all the temper and nerves and irritability that you dared not show the public for home consumption.

Sixth. Deal generously with your wife about money. Give her not only a housekeeping allowance but allowance for herself. No woman can run a house economically if she doesn't know how much she has to spend. And no woman ever forgives a man who makes her come to him like a beggar for every cent. Giving a wife an allowance saves 365 breakfast-table spats a year. It preserves a wife's self-respect and makes her think of her husband as a partner instead of a tightwad.

Respect Her Family

Seventh. Don't treat your wife's family as if they were poison and act as if you were being martyred every time they come on a visit. You may not love them, but she does, and if she failed in affection and loyalty to the mother who bore her and the father who toiled to support her and the brothers and sisters she grew up with, she would lack the very qualities that make her desirable as a wife.

Eighth. Make little treats for your wife. Give her surprises. Take her on little trips. Remember anniversaries. Do something to keep her thinking that you still regard her as a Lady Love instead of a household convenience. Spending a little money on giving a wife a good time is the best investment any man ever makes.

Ninth. Chum with your wife. Talk to her about the things that she is interested in. Tell her of your hopes and plans. It is the easiest thing in the world for a man to get so absorbed in his business and for a woman to get so obsessed with the children that they lose touch with each other and drift apart.

Tenth. Don't take your wife for granted. She isn't a mindreader and doesn't know that you love her and appreciate her and think she is the greatest woman in the world. Never cease telling her how marvelous you think she is, and if you will do that she will be the happiest woman in the world and the most envied.

Dear Miss Dix: I am very anxious to make nursing my career, but my family object to it. They insist on my taking a business course instead. Which stands higher as a profession, nursing or being a business woman? Will nursing prevent me from making a desirable match?

Answer: Nursing is a vocation as well as an avocation, and when a girl feels a call to it no one should try to prevent her from doing the work that God intended her to do. The nurse must have not only in-

Magnolia, July 17.—(AP)—Dr. Charles S. Wilkins today submitted his resignation as president of Magnolia A. & M. college.

The board of trustees is expected to name Tim Moore-Stinnett as his successor.

Stinnett was born at Junction City, Ark., May 2, 1901, and was graduated from Henderson Brown college, now Henderson State Teachers college, in 1922. He received his master's degree from the University of Arkansas in 1935.

He also has done graduate work at the Universities of Michigan and Illinois and at Peabody college.

He began his teaching career at Waldo high school in 1922 and telligence and skill, she must have initiative and courage and patience and sympathy and a devotion to her work that makes her willing to perform all the unpleasant tasks that are a part of her routine. No woman do more good in the world and are of greater service to humanity than trained nurses, and it seems almost ridiculous to ask in what esteem they are held.

And don't worry about nursing being a bar to your making a good match. A trained nurse once said to me that no other women in the world had such a chance to marry as a trained nurse did, because she could always marry either the doctor or the patient.

NLRB Orders Election at Newport Plant

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—The national labor relations board today ordered an election at the Newport plant of the Metal Products Corp., for selection of a bargaining unit.

The NLRB said employees of the machine shop may form a separate plant and certified two for places on the election.

They are lodge No. 1775 International Association of Machinists and United Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers of America.

America imported more than $800,000,000 worth of silk and silk goods in 1949. Because of competition from domestic synthetics, imports are not expected to exceed $200,000,000 in 1950.

went to Sanger in 1925. He was superintendent of the S. S. schools from 1927 to 1929.

Stinnett became associated with the state department of education in 1937 and was assistant director of education from 1945. Then he was named secretary of the Arkansas education association and served two years. He was appointed Webster Jones of the University of Arkansas and held that position for two years to return to the education department. Later he moved to Washington.

Chrysler Imperial

a new car of unrivaled distinction

This is the Chrysler Imperial...new running mate of America's finest car...the great Chrysler Crown Imperial. With the same luxurious interiors—unmatched in automotive history! With built-in value all the way through unrivaled today! With the quality of materials, the workmanship, and engineering that put every Chrysler in a class by itself! From new Clearbac rear window to the soft, satiny butler-finished chrome of interior appointments...this car is excitingly new! Deliberately built as a challenge to all former standards of what a fine car should be...and should do for you! Come take the wheel. Then carefully compare the built-in value with what the others offer.

There's built-in value all the way through without equal... Waterproof Ignition System... High Compression Spiffing Engine... Fluid Drive... Full Flow Oil Filter... foam rubber seat backs... a Booster Brake... Chrome Wheel Covers—White Sidewall Tires... many other features that, when available at all, are extra-cost on other cars.

Here is distinction in interior decor unsurpassed in any other car, regardless of price. Aristocratic color harmonies combining exquisite wool blend cloth fabrics, top-grain leathers. Chrome is beautiful butler-finished. Window lifts are electrically operated... arm rests, front and rear, are double-width throughout.
